

Please don't mess with the don't call laws in Indiana. The so-called existing customer designation allows all kinds of companies I have no interest in to call me, particularly credit card companies. I like the protection Indiana gives me. I used to get at least a call a night, usually either from a credit card company wanting to enroll me in something or someone wanting a donation to some cause. Now I seldom get more than one a week. Please make your regulation at least as strict as Indiana. Thank you
